

Through Another Night

By Joe Stein

Damaged and down on his luck, ex-boxer turned bodyguard Garron is as low as he's been. Struggling to get through each day and taking jobs he should be refusing, he finds himself in direct opposition to psychotics and drug dealers and entering the worlds of gangs and extortionists.

But this is not the Garron of old. He's been injured and out of the life too long and to survive he'll have to dig deep, into reserves he thinks he's left behind.

Reserves that might not be there anymore.

Reviews

'There's a touch of Lee Child about Joe Stein's novels; one man fighting his own private war against good and evil.'

Michael Wood, crime fiction reviewer.

Reviews for previous books by Joe Stein

'The book has a heart-breaking resonance to it; a bitter-sweet flavour coats the words.'

'Stein is a writer shouting to be discovered. His prose hit the target every time.'

Crimesquad.com

'A wonderful book - vivid scenes - depth and substance.'

'You'll want to read faster and faster. Deftly drawn characters set this up as a book that will stay with you long after you finish reading. This is the full package.'

Crimespree Magazine

'A satisfyingly gritty thriller'

The Big Issue

'Garron is very much human, just as fallible, just as afraid, just as broken inside.'

'Stein writes with real class and has created a devastatingly credible and hugely desirable character in Garron.'

The Truth About Books

Church House Flat, Coleham
Head, Shrewsbury, SY3 7BJ
01743 245089
mike@wardwoodpublishing.co.uk
www.wardwoodpublishing.co.uk

Novel

BIC Code: FF
Readership: General
ISBN: 978-1-908742-48-3
Size: 222 x 148 mm
portrait

Cover price: £9.99 paperback
Pages: 200
Published: October 2014
Weight: 300 grms
Nielsen: Currently listed

Promotional information:

Joe Stein was born in North London in the 1960s and still lives in the Borough of Barnet. His crime novels are set in London, with the main character Garron based in Camden. The publisher is in Golders Green.

Launch: London October 2014

Review copies sent: to national and local press, crime fiction magazines and websites, and general fiction review magazines.

Related books by Joe Stein:

That Twisted Thing Called Truth
(ISBN 9780956896926 £9.99)
Another Man's World
Both published by Ward Wood Publishing

Trade distribution:

UK Central Books
www.centralbooks.com
Gardners